Accelerating quality skills towards an information savvy society

Stowe Holdings have embarked on a journey with MICT Seta to host an internship programme in the Administration and IT Fields specifically tailored to service the Fuel industry, this answers the call to assist with the skills shortage in South Africa. Throughout the Regions, Stowe has focussed the selection process on unemployed youth with a desire to grow their career paths in either Administration or IT. The Internship programme runs over a period of 12 months which commenced 2nd February 2017. A total of 15 interns countrywide are being up-skilled and will be provided with real-life practical experience, ensuring they are fully prepared for future employment opportunities, given them the much needed practical experience that Employers look for when recruiting.

We welcome all 15 interns to the Stowe Holdings family. We are committed to support and guide these individuals as they embark on their internship journey and are excited to see them prosper, grow and develop!

A message from our Training & Development Officer to our Interns: Internships are a great way to learn the ropes, so even if you find yourself filing, making coffee or performing menial tasks at first, as long as you're learning about the industry take advantage of the opportunity and don't take the learning experience lightly. Asking questions is key to learning and keeping yourself flexible throughout the internship. Remember, internships can open many doors. – Riaan Rabe.
